

Change is only instant in fairy tales.

Child and youth care professionals know the young people who come into their care have issues that may take a lifetime to resolve. Often, much of their work involves confronting and working through the resistance to being cared for. They know patience and hanging in there can go a long way towards healing. Their work deserves to be professional with standards and regulations. The Council appreciates your membership and support for its initiatives to realize professional status for child and youth care work.
